Discover 300 Years of History in Annapolis, MD with EVB Tuesday - May 13, 2014

Annapolis is one of America's most historic cities. Many of its houses and public buildings are more than two hundred years old. In fact, Annapolis has more surviving Colonial buildings than anywhere in the country. Many exciting discoveries await your visit to the historic seaport community. Start your tour off with a visit to the United States Naval Academy for a guided, walking tour of this beautiful National Historic Site. Great moments and heroes in American Navy and Marine Corps history are represented throughout the Yard in statues, paintings, ships and artifacts. Mementos and traditions of naval history abound; the Chapel, John Paul Jones' crypt, the Museum, Bancroft Hall, Halsey Field House, LeJeune Hall, and other monuments dedicated to our country's Naval heroes. This is a walking tour - wear comfortable shoes (due to security - please make sure you bring an I.D.)

Enjoy lunch at Phillip Seafood Restaurant, located in the historic Annapolis City Dock area. 2014 marks their 100th Anniversary - a century of serving wonderful seafood! Today's lunch includes a cup of Maryland vegetable crab soup and a choice of one of the following: Classic Ocean City Crab Cake (skillet fried), Chicken Salad Sandwich or ½ pound of Classic "peel and eat" Steamed Shrimp. Entrees served with family-style potato salad or slaw, coffee/tea/soda and warm peach shortcake for dessert.

After lunch, stroll through the downtown area, visiting their many quaint shops - or find a park bench and enjoy the scenery. Next, step aboard the Harbor Queen for a 40 minute, narrated cruise of the Annapolis Harbor and the banks of the U.S. Naval Academy. Hear about Annapolis' role as an historic seaport, the region's waterways and even catch a glimpse of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge.
